

What you agree on the call gets signed and paid in USDC.

THE PROBLEM

The deal is closed on a call. The money comes from another country.

42% verbal only of US freelancers always work on a verbal agreement. Only 28% always use a contract.

$5,968 unpaid

per freelancer per year on average, 13% of income. 71% have had trouble collecting.

93% paid in USD

of Argentine remote workers. When a client abroad stops answering, there's little to fall back on.

The terms were said out loud. Nobody wrote them down, and nobody set up the payment.

THE SOLUTION

YOU TALK.
BOTH SIGN.
YOU GET PAID.

RockSign turns the call where you closed the job into an agreement both sides sign, sealed on Solana. Then it collects the payment plan you agreed on, in USDC. Live today at rocksign.vercel.app (Solana devnet).

HOW IT WORKS

From the call to USDC, without writing a line.

Anyone can verify the document against the chain. Signed agreements export to PDF with a QR to the seal transaction.

THE AGREEMENT

Every clause comes with its proof.

Tap ► and hear the second it was agreed. The result is an electronically signed, tamper-evident agreement with an on-chain timestamp.

WHY NOW

Three curves crossed in the last few years.

Calls became data

A minute of audio costs under a cent to transcribe by machine, $1.99 by a human. AI reads the terms out of it.

Dollars on Solana

About $8.1B of USDC is on Solana, more than 10% of all USDC. A transfer costs about $0.0005.

Workers want stablecoins

57% of independent workers would accept them; 18% in emerging markets already get paid in them.

MARKET

Argentina first. Then Latin America.

TAM

46M

Online gig workers in Latin America and the Caribbean.

SAM

500K

Argentine freelancers working for clients abroad.

SOM · 24 months*

1.8K

Paying freelancers, about $144K a year in fees.

Sources: World Bank, Working Without Borders (2023) · Ministerio de Economía via Ámbito (2023) · Stripe (2026) · Deel via iProUP (2026).

*Assumptions: Stripe's 18% emerging-market rate applied to Argentina = 90K; 2% convert; $32K average income (Deel), 25% of it paid through RockSign, 1% fee.

BUSINESS MODEL

Free to sign. 1% when you get paid.

Agreements

Free

Drafting from the call, both signatures, the Solana seal, verification and the PDF.

Payments

1% of each payment

Split inside the same Solana transaction: 99% to the freelancer, 1% to RockSign.

Client

US$ 0 in gas

RockSign pays network fees. The client needs no wallet and no SOL.

Built-in growth: every agreement puts RockSign in front of a client who also hires freelancers.

COMPETITION

Escrow is crowded. We start at the call.

	Starts from the call	▶ receipt per clause	Client: no wallet, no SOL	Payment plan in USDC
Notetakers (Otter, Fireflies)	Yes	Summary	—	No
E-sign & ops (DocuSign, Bonsai)	No	No	Yes	No
Solana freelance escrow	No	No	Varies	Escrow
VoiceArbiter (Frontier)	Yes	No	Phantom + SOL	SOL escrow
RockSign · live on devnet	Yes	Yes	Yes	Yes

Solana freelance escrow: PIVOX, klyrn, LOCKR, SHIELD-PAY, Vesti, FreelancePay, TrustForge and more, none of them won a prize; their cluster (149 projects) is not among the 20 with the most winners (Colosseum Copilot, Oct 2026). VoiceArbiter did call → AI terms → SOL escrow (Phantom + devnet SOL required); no award.

ROADMAP

Live on devnet. Next: real dollars, then pesos.

PHASE 1 • NEXT

Mainnet

Real USDC on Solana mainnet.
Embedded wallets with recovery, so clients still need no wallet.

PHASE 2 • THEN

Off-ramps

Partners that turn USDC into pesos.
Argentina first, then other LATAM currencies.

PHASE 3 • LATER

Evidence pack

Escrow-free dispute evidence: signed terms, clause audio and payment history in one file.
